Exhibit and Sponsorship Opportunities

Abstract

BeLi24 is a world-class meeting meant to convene in Padova the international scientific community active at the global level in the research of all the fundamental and applied aspects of materials for beyond Li-ion batteries. Materials for solid-state and high voltage batteries, lithium metal batteries and batteries exploiting chemistries not relying on lithium ion will be considered. Such materials will mainly include anodes, cathodes and electrolytes; other materials (e.g., dopants, components for the fabrication of the battery case) will be considered as well. BeLi24 will be is also focused on the experimental and the theoretical/computational aspects of the materials, such as the mechanisms of charge migration, the interactions and the reactions at the various electrochemical interfaces, and the cyclability and performance in batteries. Finally, BeLi24 will also examine the safety and the circular economy aspects of beyond Li-ion batteries, including the disassembly, the recovering/recycling and the life-cycle assessment of the materials and components. On these bases, it is our great pleasure to invite you to participate actively to this meeting, in order to extend and renew with innovative contributions and stimuli this crucial field of science and technology of the future world.
